Diane Delin - Spring 2015

Diane Delin is a Chicago-based jazz violinist, composer, educator and producer. The Downbeat Critics Poll has placed her in the “Rising Star” category four times, and the Los Angeles Times remarks, “Delin produces improvisations of considerable style and unmistakable integrity.” Neil Tesser writes that she “can light a real fire under a band and an audience.” Diane tours in the US and Europe with her groups. She has also played and toured with other groups, including the Frank Sinatra Orchestra. Her participatory educational program, “Jazz Talk,” has been presented to thousands of students. She is also String Coordinator at Columbia College Chicago, where she is an instructor of classical, jazz, pop and folk lessons and ensembles. She has five solo albums. Her most recent reached #5 on the national jazz radio charts.

Diane was kind enough to perform with Howard Levy at the EISMA 2014 Fall Fundraiser, which was supported by many Evanston families.
